CHC33015 Certificate III in Individual Support

Course Overview

This qualification reflects the role of workers in the community and/or residential setting who follow an individualised plan to provide person-centred support to people who may require support due to ageing, disability or some other reason. Work involves using discretion and judgement in relation to individual support as well as taking responsibility for own outputs. Workers have a range of factual, technical and procedural knowledge, as well as some theoretical knowledge of the concepts and practices required to provide person-centred support.

Key Outcomes

- Provide and monitor support services within the limits established by an individualised plan.
- Provide individualised services in ways that support independence, as well as, physical and emotional wellbeing.
- Communicate effectively with clients, colleagues, management and other industry providers.
- Work respectfully with people from diverse social and cultural groups and situations, including Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander people.
- Work within the legal and ethical frameworks that apply to an individual job role.
- Work with basic information about the human body and to recognise and promote ways to maintain healthy functioning of the body.
- Participate in safe work practices to ensure their own health and safety, and that of others in work environments that involve caring directly for clients.
- Respond to the goals and aspirations of older people and provide support services in a manner that focuses on improving health outcomes and quality of life, using a person-centred approach.
- Provide person-centred care and support to people living with dementia. It involves following and contributing to an established individual plan.
- Determine and respond to an individual's physical personal support needs and to support activities of daily living.
- Respond to the needs of people who are experiencing loss, grief and bereavement.
- Implement behaviour support strategies outlined in an individualised behaviour support plan for a person with disability.
- Assist with supporting people with disability in community participation and social inclusion using a person-centred approach, enabling people to make choices to maximise their participation in various community settings, functions and activities to enhance psychosocial well-being and
